

Long Service Leave

You will be entitled to long service leave after a significant period of working with us.

Your entitlement to long service leave comes from long service leave laws in each state or territory. These laws set out:

- How long you have to be working to get long service leave (eg. after 7 years)
- How much long service leave you get.

In some states and territories long serving casuals are eligible for long service leave.

To find out about long service leave entitlements in your state, please review the Long Service Leave FAQs.

Portable long service leave

Australian states and territories have legislation to provide employees in the coal mining, cleaning and building and construction industries with access to portable long service leave.

This means you keep your long service leave entitlement even if you work on different projects for one or more employers.